

Darwinists persistently assert that there is a “missing link” between humans and apes

“He catches the wise in their own foolishness”—1 Corinthians 3:19 NIV

“We still have not found the missing link between us and apes” is the title of an article published by BBC News on May 18, 2017. The article is about the search for a “missing link.” Since there are no living creatures that fill in the gaps or “missing links” between humans and apes, Darwinists persistently assert that there was a “last common ancestor” (LCA). “Most people know it by a non-scientific name: ‘the missing link.’”

“Scientists have been on the trail of the LCA for decades, and they still have not found it.” It has a lot in common with Big Foot – you know it has to be out there somewhere. The only problem is you never can find it. Scientists have had a lot of trouble trying to even agree on much of anything about this LCA. But the article assures us that the “fossilized remains of the LCA might come to light any time.”

Really?

“They might even be discovered this very year.” Don’t hold your breath, though. Why? “Because there is so little agreement on what the LCA should look like, researchers will interpret the fossils differently, the article admits. Never fear, though, for the safety of the evolution theory of Darwinism! Just as any and all critics and criticism of the ancient goddess Artemis was and were drowned out with “shouting: ‘Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!’” (Acts 19:28 NIV) So it is today with the goddess of Darwinism.

Never mind that all living things were both created and reproduce “according to their kinds.” (Genesis 1:11-12; Genesis 1:21-25 CSB) Never mind that no “missing links” exist in the world today. Never mind that scientists cannot agree on any LCA or “missing link” for humans and animals. These truths are generally “suppressed.” (Romans 1:18 CSB) Darwinists “have exchanged the truth of God for a lie.” (Romans 1:25 NIV; CSB) This LCA has been asserted now for the past 150 years. The only problem is they can’t find it, because it doesn’t exist. “Instead, their thinking became nonsense” (Romans 1:21 CSB), “although claiming to be wise.” (Romans 1:22 CSB) And no wonder: “they have rejected the word of the LORD, so what wisdom do they really have?” (Jeremiah 8:9 CSB)
